October 4, 2006 - 5:24PM

Students at East Ridge High school are learning a thing or two about construction, and what better place than the Market Street Bridge. Donned in their hard hats, the construction academy students are seeing, first-hand, what it takes to be a construction worker. The school offers various courses for students to get a jump start on their careers. Last year, the academy was voted the construction academy of the year.
